Introduction & Purpose

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's Healthy Communities portfolio is working toward RWJF's Generational Goal of working with others to build Healthy and Equitable Community Conditions that allow all residents to thrive. RWJF and its partners are facing the challenges of U.S. land use policies that were designed to intentionally maintain racial and economic segregation. Such regulations continue to result in the exclusion of real families from affordable housing, community assets, and opportunity, creating significant health inequities.

Land use and zoning are critical tools for improving community health. Healthy Communities seeks to provide grants to organizations and communities that are actively working to reimagine land use and zoning as tools for advancing healthy, thriving, and equitable communities. This call for proposals (CFP) is designed to identify and support existing and ongoing work that is in the demonstration (pilot), implementation, or
